

Shane Norman

Shane is the lead singer and mandolin player for the Soul Pickers. He is from New Market, Alabama, where he lives with his wife, Cari, and two daughters, Neeley and Audrey. Shane lists his biggest influences as Ronnie McCoury, Wayne Benson, Russell Moore, and Doyle Lawson. Shane also helps the group by handling its finances and upkeep of the bus.

Daniel Wiseman

Daniel plays the guitar for the Soul Pickers. He makes his home Winchester, Tennessee. He makes regular appearances on WLII 1580's "The Old Time Country Radio Show," as the banjo player in the house band. His biggest influences are Tony Rice and Ralph Stanley. When not out with the Soul Pickers, Daniel enjoys picking with friends, fishing and hunting.

Tyler Anderson

Tyler is from Manchester, Tennessee and sings baritone and plays the banjo for the Soul Pickers. He also plays the guitar, dobro, mandolin, upright bass, and fiddle. His biggest influences are Tim O'Brien, Pete Wernick, and Mike Snider. When he's not traveling with the group, you can usually find him hunting or fishing.

Wayne Clemons

Wayne sings tenor and plays upright bass for the Soul Pickers. He is from Fayetteville, Tennessee, where he lives with his wife, Lois. When he's not traveling with the Soul Pickers, he enjoys spending time with his wife and back porch picking. In addition to his musical contributions to the Soul Pickers, Wayne also handles the booking, and serves as road manager for the group. He and his wife Lois are expecting their first child this summer.